I will use for exemplification the macro named Drawing_Titleblock_PlyBook.CATScript .

Because the macro editor is not so friendly from visual point of view, I've done some modifications to a popular free portable text editor named SCITE.

If you choose to open in this enhanced text editor, you will lose the other advantages coming from the original CATIA VB Editor (object browser, insert object resolution...)

The macro used for example is looking like here (V5 macro version). Is a long macro with over 1100 lines which will create a specific frame and a title block.
